Throughout its history, Burns Envy, only Hits! has featured new music releases, independent productions and emerging artists from the international music scene.

Each episode explores a selection of recent releases, introducing listeners to new sounds, artists and musical projects across different genres and countries. Over the years, the show has also included artist features and dedicated presentations.

The concept grew from Raffaella Piccirillo's passion for music and her commitment to creating a space where independent artists can reach new audiences and share their work.

A NEW CHAPTER in the show's history.

Being listed in the IMDb database adds another layer to the documentation of the radio show's history and its evolution over the years.

The IMDb entry provides a permanent reference for the project within an international database dedicated to film, television and audiovisual productions, while also documenting another aspect of Piccirillo's long-standing work as an artist, songwriter, music producer and radio host.

An independent journey built SEASON AFTER SEASON.

Since its launch in 2011, Burns Envy, only Hits! has continued to focus on new music and independent artists, maintaining an international perspective throughout its different seasons.

The IMDb listing represents a further step in bringing the project beyond its original radio environment and preserving its history as part of Raffaella Piccirillo's ongoing artistic and broadcasting career.
